Matilda slowly opened her eyes and she saw many tall, dark green trees. Her eyes quickly widened with shock and she rapidly stood up. Matilda couldn't believe what she was seeing! It couldn't be. She found herself lost in a huge jungle! She saw two rocky paths with stones and pebbles.

Right path

Matilda looked around with fear. Many bad things could happen to her. As she was walking, she saw 2 people emerging from a path. They looked very familiar to Matilda. It was her parents!

“Matilda!” shouted her dad enthusiastically. “Let’s go home”, said her mum softly. So they happily went home.

Return

Matilda walked to the right path and found a large tree with a hole in the front just like a door. Suddenly, Matilda felt some sleepiness take over her. But her stomach roared with hunger.

Take a rest

Search for food

Matilda slowly sat down and leaned against on one of the tangled roots of the tree. Matilda closed her eyes and drifted to sleep. “Puuurrrrrr”. Matilda heard a strange noise so she quickly opened her eyes. But she saw nothing but trees, the sky and the ground. She closed her eyes again. PUUURRRRRRR”! This time Matilda shot her eyes wide open so she wouldn’t miss what made the dreadful sound. In front of her was a jaguar the colour of midnight. It raced up to Matilda and showed its huge, sharp teeth. Its teeth sank into Matilda’s arm and blood came pouring out. “OOOOOOOOOWWWWWWWWWW!” Screamed Matilda. What was next? Her leg being chomped? Getting eaten alive? But whatever it is going to be, Matilda is not ready for it.

Return

Page 7 Matilda couldn't wait for food. She was desperate! So she decided to look for food. As she kept walking, she ended up seeing some bushes with 2 different types of berries on them. Matilda, who was still desperate for food, doesn't know which berry to choose. She has to watch out. One might be poisonous.

Eat pink berry

Eat red berry

Matilda decided to gather the red berries. They were the colour of fresh, delicate roses. She realised, if she ate one now, she could see if it was poisonous or not. So she enthusiastically threw a berry in her mouth. It was delicious! But as she kept chewing on it, she felt dizzy. Everything was spinning in circles. And Matilda's eyesight got blurry.

Matilda decided to gather the pink berries but she wanted to know if it was poisonous. She picked up a berry and threw it into her mouth. Suddenly, a burst of sweetness exploded in her mouth. It was so scrumptious. Matilda gathered as many berries as she could until her arms were full of small, pink berries.

Page 10 Matilda's stomach roared. She ate 5 more berries rapidly. She was in heaven! She couldn't resist the astonishing flavour. Although, she still needed to find her way out of this wide jungle. But she was still starving.

Eat more berries

Keep exploring

Page 11 Matilda munched on the delicious berries until they all disappeared. She needed more. So much more. Matilda took the same rocky path. She ended up in the same area with all the big, leafy bushes. Matilda gathered more of the small, pink berries. She then happily walked onto a path. Matilda kept walking and found herself a large, steep hill. Matilda didn't remember anything about a hill, until she realised she was lost.

Return

Page 12 Matilda slowly put the berries on top of the huge roots of the tree. She was desperate to eat 1 more berry but she still had to find her way out of this wide jungle. Matilda saw 2 different paths. One had small chunks of rocks. The other had grains of dirt.

Path with grains of dirt

Matilda thought about which path to take but her heart told her to take the rocky path. She kept walking until she saw a dark, gloomy mine. Matilda heard metal clanging onto rocks in the distance. She crept into the mine. Matilda saw 2 people breaking large rocks. “Hello?” Matilda said as she shivered with fright. The 2 people quickly turned around. “Matilda?” Said a familiar voice. She soon realised it was her mum... and dad! She ran to them and squeezed them tight. “Let’s go home”, said dad sweetly.

Return

THE END

Page 14 Matilda's shoes crunched on the dry sticks lying on the grains of dirt. She looked at each direction as her feet trembled in fear. Suddenly, Matilda heard leaves rustling. She quickly turned her head and saw that the bush's leaves were shaking. Matilda was petrified but she was also full with curiosity and wondered what it was.

Be brave and stay

Run away

Page 15 Matilda sprinted so fast as if a tiger was chasing her. She pushed through the leaves with fright and stopped as she was panting. In front of her was a cave. Matilda curiously looked around. She didn't remember a cave. Although, it didn't take long until she realised she was lost.

Return

Matilda picked up the first stick she could see. She shut her eyes very tight so she wouldn't see a thing except pure darkness. NEIGH! Matilda slowly opened one eye and then carefully opened the other one. It was a brown horse the colour of milk chocolate. He was a friendly horse. Matilda brushed her hand against the horse's thin fur. Matilda gave a gentle smile to the horse. She decided to keep exploring but riding a horse would be much easier than walking. But Matilda was unsure how to tame a horse.

Tame the horse

Don't tame the horse

Page 17 Matilda looked away from the horse because she knew his adorable face would convince her. She walked towards her tree, although, she found herself in front of a dark, gloomy cave. Matilda turned around to go back to the horse but it was no use. Matilda ran as she cried with despair. How was she going to get out?

Return

Page 18 Matilda calmly took a deep breath. “I’ll just follow my instincts”, said Matilda, trying to be as calm as she could. She gently hopped onto the horse’s back and rubbed his fluffy main. “Let’s do this”, said Matilda bravely. Before Matilda new it, the horse galloped rapidly. Matilda eyed a path covered in dry, crunchy leaves. Matilda enthusiastically leaned to the right... and the horse turned right! It was a miracle for Matilda because she didn’t even know how to steer a horse! In front of her were 2 paths. One with a rusty bridge and one with pebbles and small stones.

Go to the rusty bridge

Path with pebbles and small stones

Matilda carefully leaned left as she wondered if she made the right decision. The horse's hooves gently touched the rusty bridge. Matilda looked down into the river and saw scaly piranhas watching Matilda cross the bridge. Suddenly, Matilda heard something snap and as she looked down she realised it was the bridge. SNAP! The old bridge snapped into 2 and Matilda and the horse dramatically fell into the river. The piranhas rushed to them and glared at them. The piranhas' sharp, shiny teeth dug into Matilda's body. Blood emerged from her arms and legs. Matilda quickly glanced at the horse. He sank into the water and he struggled to get air. Matilda watched the poor horse drown. Matilda then raged out and she pushed the piranhas away from her. But she saw ahead of her was a waterfall. And before Matilda could escape, she fell down the waterfall.

Return

Page 20 Matilda carefully leaned right as she wondered if she made the right decision. As the horse's hooves kept galloping, Matilda saw her tree! She was relieved that she found her way back but something was awfully wrong. Matilda saw 2 people observing her tree and her stuff. She wanted to see what was going on but Matilda desperately wanted to survive. Matilda looked at her horse. "What should I do?" Matilda murmured.

Go closer

Page 21

Matilda decided that she had to give up on her tree. Suddenly she heard something. “Matilda? Is that you?”. Matilda was petrified. Not only they were observing her tree but they knew her name too! Matilda sprinted away from her tree. “NEIGH!” said the horse. He couldn’t follow Matilda because soon he lost sight of her. “This is enough! I need to find my family!” said Matilda angrily. But as she kept running, Matilda dramatically tripped over a stone, and in front of her was a deep pit. Matilda fell down the dark pit and she kept falling. Light was getting smaller every second. When would she get to the bottom?

THE END

Return

Page 22 Matilda shuffled forward and peered through the leaves. She saw that all her delicious berries weren't there anymore. "Probably birds", Matilda murmured as she rolled her eyes. "Matilda? Is that you?" said a familiar voice. Matilda was shocked. Who are these people anyway? Could Matilda trust them?

Run away

Show herself

Page 23

Matilda couldn't make any mistakes or her life will be over. Matilda thought it would be the best idea if she ran away with her horse because you never know what is out there. Matilda turned around and started running. "Matilda! Wait!" said the voice again but Matilda just ignored it. Matilda was looking behind her. "Come on horse", said Matilda but she couldn't see him anywhere. "Horse?" said Matilda as she was running and looking behind her. But then, she dramatically tripped over a stone, and in front of her was a very deep pit. Matilda fell into the dark pit and yelled for help. "Help! HELP!" screamed Matilda but light was getting smaller each second. When was she going to reach the bottom?

THE END

Return

Page 24

Matilda slowly emerged from the bush. She could smell the scent of her mum's hand cream. "Matilda?" said the familiar voice again until Matilda soon realised it was her mum. "Mum!" said Matilda with happy tears pouring out of her eyes. Matilda's mum opened her arms wide and Matilda ran into them happily. As Matilda turned her head, she saw her dad. "Dad!" Matilda shouted as her dad came rushing into her arms. "Let's go home", said Matilda's dad sweetly. Suddenly, Matilda remembered the scrumptious flavour of those pink berries. Sadly, it seemed like some silly birds came and demolished them and Matilda desperately wanted to share that flavour with her parents. Should she just go home though?

Go home

Get berries

Page 25

“Mum, dad, there are these delicious berries you need to try. I’ll go get them”, said Matilda enthusiastically. “Just promise me you won’t get lost”, said Matilda’s mum sounding a bit worried. Matilda wandered off onto the same path she took to go get the berries. Matilda gathered so many berries that her arms were covered in them. “Let’s get these to mum and dad”, said Matilda. Matilda carried the berries to mum and dad. Until 3 berries fell out of her arms. They rolled into a bush so Matilda pushed her arm into the leaves of the bush. As Matilda poked her tongue out trying to get the berries, she saw the sky turning orange. “Is it dawn already?” cried Matilda. Before Matilda knew it, it got dark and Matilda couldn’t see a thing except for the shimmering stars and the glowing moon. Matilda shivered as the frosty breeze blew. How was Matilda going to find her mum and dad?

THE END

Return

Matilda was just full of joy that she couldn't leave her precious family again. Too much happiness had taken over her. But one dreadful thing hit Matilda's mind. She had to leave her gorgeous horse here. Matilda let go of her parents and slowly walked to her horse. Matilda smiled sadly and said, "Thank you for everything you've done to help me". Matilda patted his mane and sadly whispered, "I hope I can see you again". Then Matilda let go of her horse and waved at him. "NEIGH!" said the horse and he galloped back into the jungle. "Let's go home", said Matilda and she walked away talking all about her massive adventure. But how did she get there in the first place?
